Study in contrast

Production and area under jute has declined in India in the past decade, but in Bangladesh the cash crop has shown a significant rise

India's jute economy is faltering while Bangladesh's is flourishing

India is still the largest producer of jute but in terms of acreage, Bangladesh is the largest cultivator. It also accounts for nearly 75 per cent of the global jute exports, while India's share is just 7 per cent.

Reasons: Lack of market, government procurement and diversification, poor infrastructure as well as the sorry state of Indian jute mills is responsible for this.

It is usually celebrated in August or September (rainy season)
