	The term 'Greenhouse effect' has been derived from a phenomenon that occurs in a greenhouse

The term 'Greenhouse effect' has been derived from a phenomenon that occurs in a greenhouse which looks like a small glass house and is used for growing plants especially during winter. In a greenhouse the glass panel lets the light in, but does not allow heat to escape. Therefore, the greenhouse warms up.

The greenhouse effect is a naturally occurring phenomenon that is responsible for heating of Earth's surface and atmosphere. Without greenhouse effect the average temperature of surface of Earth would have been a chilly -18°C rather than the present average of 15°C . It is necessary to know the fate of the energy of sunlight that reaches the outermost atmosphere. Clouds and gases reflect about one fourth for of the incoming solar radiation, and absorb some of it out almost half of incoming solar radiation falls on Earth's surface heating it, while a small proportion is reflected back. Earth's surface re-emits heat in the form of infrared radiation but part of this does not escape into space as atmosphere gases (e.g. carbon dioxide, methane, etc) absorb a major fraction of it. The above mentioned gases are known as greenhouse gases because they are responsible for the greenhouse effect.
