Chola-era stone inscriptions found in Thanjavur district 	Context: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Stone inscriptions dating back to the Chola era were found in an agriculture field near Papanasam in Thanjavur district. Epigraphists said that fragments of inscriptions mention land donations to a temple. They decipher these inscriptions to piece together the Chola administrative structure, agricultural practices, and religious life. About: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> They are 3-4 feet long and one foot wide. After studying the style and pattern of Tamil script on the inscriptions, it is estimated that they could belong to the 9th-10th century. Each inscription was engraved with 3-8 lines of messages. Based on the usage of words such as 'ma' and 'kuzhi' that relate to historical units for measuring land, we can assume that the stones contain information on boundaries of land donations made by Chola kings.
